

Montréal Exchange Introduces Share Futures

New product class expands trading opportunities for institutional investors

Montréal Exchange (MX), Canada's financial derivatives exchange, today launched trading in share futures on Canadian-listed securities. Also referred to as single stock futures, each share futures contract allows an investor to buy or sell shares of an underlying listed security at a fixed price at a future date.

MX share futures contracts are designed to meet the evolving needs of many of our participants, including institutional investors, hedge funds and portfolio managers. The listing of share futures contracts on Canadian stocks extends MX's offering in equity derivatives products. A share futures contract trades in Canadian dollars, represents 100 shares of stock and is physically delivered.

At launch, MX share futures are available on 20 underlying securities listed on Toronto Stock Exchange (TSX), some of which are interlisted on other global equity markets. Share futures are cleared by the Canadian Derivatives Clearing Corporation.
